JAMBALAYA
Writers' Conference

Terrebonne Parish LIBRARY

An event for authors, writers, & readers

The Friends of the Terrebonne Parish Public Library announce the 13th annual Jambalaya Writers' Conference, April 2, 2016. Psychologists, detectives, local colorists, and bloggers are scheduled to provide aspiring writers help and guidance when incorporating different aspects into their writing. Conference fee is $35 and $40 at the door. Poetry and Fiction contests are due before March 1, 2016.

Conference Location
Terrebonne Parish Main Library
151 Library Drive, Houma, LA 70360

Keynote Presenter
New York Times Best-Selling Author
Neely Tucker

Neely Tucker writes non-fiction by day at the The Washington Post, where he has been a staff writer for fifteen years, and is currently assigned to cover the 2016 U.S. Presidential campaign and election. He writes fiction by night at his house, where it isn't frowned upon to have a friendly glass of bourbon by the keyboard.
