Like Westworld?

Try These Books & Movies at the Library

Like around 6 million other people, have you been tuning into HBO's new drama Westworld? The weekly drama, originally a 1973 movie directed by author Michael Crichton, follows an old west theme park staffed by robots.

For $40,000 a day, guests can do... whatever. While the guests follow their own desires, secrets lie beneath the sunny desert exterior. If you are as intrigued as I am and looking to fill the time between Sundays, try these items the library has to offer.

JURASSIC PARK

Jurassic Park by Michael Crichton

You could call this as Crichton's follow up novel to Westworld. It follows the same theme: a theme park for rich people where the attractions go horribly wrong and people end up screaming. A fun read with lots of interesting science.

Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep by Philip K. Dick

This novella might be better known by the movie's title of Blade Runner, but the story follows a close science fiction line to Westworld. The plot is about a man hunting down escaped androids using various mental tests to disprove their humanity. The same questions of pure consciousness and humanity for artificial intelligence are used in Westworld

Terminator Genisys

Let's be honest, this movie is on the list because it's a watchable Rock'em Sock'em Robot movie. Back from the future, the Arnold robot must save two people from people machines blah blah blah there's guns and explosions. Not much is available for your thinking caps to cover, but if you are looking for robots that look like people, this movie has that.

Ex Machina

The last on this list is a personal favorite and should be set aside for mature audiences only. A man is sent to his boss's home where he is given a task: evaluate the artificially intelligent robot the boss has created. The robot also happens to look like a beautiful young woman. Is the boss insane? Does the robot have an agenda of her own? What is innocence and consciousness? In the end, you will wonder who was testing whom all along.

East Houma Clerk

How long have you worked for TPLS?
16 years

Who is your favorite childhood storybook character?

As I child, my mom would read from a Sesame Street bedtime book to my sister and me every night. I read the same book to my children when they were young. But now, as an adult, I am obsessed with Pete the Cat, Mo Williams' Pigeon, and, of course, Olaf.

Why do you love the library?

I love the library because I get to work with great people. Also, I get to read aloud, dance, and sing with babies while watching them grow to love reading.

You can choose any writer you want, alive or dead. Who is coming over to your house for Thanksgiving turkey?

It's difficult to choose just one writer. For the last 16 years, I have read over 1300 books (I keep track), and I read every book of at least 15 authors that I adore. These authors include: Sharon Sala, Lisa Jackson, Heather Graham, Lynette Eason, Dakota Cassidy, Liliana Hart, and Stephanie Evanovich, just to name a handful.

What are some your favorite library memories?

There are so many great library memories, it's impossible to name just one. I've made many friends, and I've had the privilege of watching their kids grow up with a love for the library too. I will continue to encourage the youth of today to enjoy coming to visit us.
